On September 5th, RH (whose initials stand for Restoration Hardware) opened its doors with panache, in the presence of Catherine Deneuve, Théo James and Zoé Saldana in the middle of the Champs-Élysées. Known as the white wolf in the United States, this Californian decoration brand, launched at the end of the 80s in the port city of Eureka, has just taken up residence there in place of the former Abercrombie & Fitch store. With a focus on creating tailor-made decor, it has grown incredibly over the years, to the point of now being present in all four corners of the US, but also in England, Belgium and Spain.

Behind a gate adorned with gold leaf, visitors enter along a line of boxwood, carefully trimmed, before discovering a sculptural entrance where Leonardo da Vinci 's perfectly proportioned man sits enthroned as a sign of the future . A hybrid space, it is divided into several floors and different spaces with their own functions.

Individuals and professionals alike can complete projects from A to Z with a studio of expert architects and craftsmen. They can also purchase furniture, which can also vary in size, fabric, or structure, depending on their taste. A short walk away, a bookstore houses antique volumes and contemporary design books.

Also designed as a members' club, there are various bars and restaurants to frequent throughout the day.

Upstairs, the Jardin RH allows you to have lunch and dinner under a glass roof inspired by the Grand Palais.

Further up, the bar boasts a cocktail menu created by Colin Field (former bartender at the Ritz Paris).

Finally, the place is topped with a rooftop overlooking the Eiffel Tower.
