

Catherine Deneuve, Zoe Saldana... in Paris, the stars get up to date with trends for a prestigious event

Known as the former Abercrombie & Fitch site, the mansion at 23 Avenue des Champs-Élysées reopened its doors on September 4, now under the management of RH Paris. Gala, a guest at the party, filmed the crowd of French and American celebrities invited to the opening.

For more than a decade, young, body-built models greeted the constant stream of customers and tourists outside the doors of the mansion at 23 Avenue des Champs-Élysées, where Abercrombie & Fitch had taken up residence. Since the store closed in 2021, the place has remained deserted. RH Paris, the American high-end furniture brand formerly known as Restoration Hardware, put an end to the building's long slumber this Thursday, September 4. The brand inaugurated its first French gallery, spreading design, art, and gastronomy over 7 levels and 3,900 m² of space. All the cream of Paris's celebrity and fashion scene was present at the event, as well as big names from Hollywood.

Catherine Deneuve made a remarkable arrival in a long, round-necked coat embroidered with sequins, depicting a landscape in chocolate and pale pink, two very fashionable colors for this fall 2025. Under her jacket, the French cinema icon played the all-black look card, in flowing high-waisted pants and a fine knit matching her Saint Laurent black velvet bag with gold chain and her pointed-toe pumps adorned with a satin bow. During the evening, the 81-year-old actress ran into Theo James, known for playing Tobias Eaton in Divergent and recently starring in the series The Gentlemen and The White Lotus.

Catherine Deneuve in Paris on September 4, 2025. Yehiel Chekroune / Bestimage

Zoe Saldana and her sister, Ellen DeGeneres and her wife: fashion-forward duos

Zoe Saldana was also there, accompanied by her sister Cisely. The Oscar-winning star, who won a César for her role in Emilia Perez, showed off her avant-garde style in a red plaid shirt and velvet wrap skirt held together by a gold-buckled belt and paired with leather boots. Two key materials for the upcoming fall/winter season. The actress posed with Gary Friedman, CEO of RH, before slipping out with her sister, wearing a long white dress printed with male figurines. Finally, Ellen DeGeneres arrived hand in hand with her wife Portia de Rossi. The American presenter wore white pleated trousers with casual sneakers and a simple black T-shirt, while her wife opted for the elegance of a long black dress.