

Margot Robbie's gray blazer in Milan for Design Week

For the inauguration of The Gallery, the new Milanese space of the luxury furniture brand RH, the actress chooses a grey power suit and contrasting accessories

by Rebecca Bruni

Margot Robbie and more. Numerous Hollywood stars have flocked to Milan for Design Week: the occasion? The opening of the first Italian store for the American furniture brand RH. The Gallery will be open starting today and will welcome the public to its 7,000 square meters, decorated with artworks, contemporary collections, and antiques. A new hub for design lovers, the space is located in the Palazzo del Principe di Piombino, a fully restored 19th-century historic residence on Corso Venezia.

April 22, 2026

The Californian brand chose Salone del Mobile week last night to inaugurate its Milan store—which also features a restaurant, lounge, library, and private garden—with a highly private event. Guests included Zoe Saldana in a gold dress and Margot Robbie in a Giorgio Armani ensemble.

The 35-year-old Australian actress embraces the masculine elegance of the power suit , opting for an oversized blazer and loose-fitting pants in gray wool . A matching crewneck sweater and turtleneck underjacket elevate the outfit, creating an interesting interplay of layers. Completing the ensemble are a leather belt, burgundy loafers, and a precious brooch pinned to the lapel of the jacket in the shape of Cancer, Armani's zodiac sign.

